

Kenya Agricultural Research Institute is the leading agricultural research body in Kenya. It has a network of research centres throughout Kenya. KARI will thus assist with the implementation of the proposed project through provision of personnel. KARI with its network of research centres in Kenya is a formidable institution for practical application, up and out scaling of the results of the proposed work in the country for maximum benefits to the agricultural sector. Dr. Leonard Wamae, a Veterinarian and Assistant Director of Livestock leads this component of the project.
